THE POLICE DEPARTMENT

AND THE HYPOTHESIS OF DEMOCRACY

A police administration under which the police station safe itself was not exempt from being plundered could scarcely be esteemed so perfect as to presuppose a change impossibly without incalculable injury to the city, the Moral Reform association, the six ex-mayors and the sixty odd well-intentioned but uninformed petitioners to the contrary notwithstanding.

The general presumption is that a police force is organized and retained for the protection of the life and property of the citizens. Elected persons, mayors, aldermen, etc., are representatives of the citizens entrusted with the duty of seeing that such employed persons as police officers are competent to perform, and do perform, the duties they are paid to perform. It is when the employed persons do not perform that the elected persons are supposed to get busy.

To serve in this latter capacity, Edmonton, at the recent municipal elections, choose W. J. McNamara mayor and a number of other citizens to assist him as aldermen.

Having become convinced that the citizens, whom he represented, were not getting the police protection they were paying for, the mayor decided that a change would be in the public interest. That was his duty and his prerogative.

But the mayor had not yet expressed an opinion as to what changes should be made, who should go and who should replace those who must go, when there arose from a certain quarter an imperative demand that no change whatever be made. This demand took the form of a petition directed to the mayor and council, the essence being that the judgment of the petitioners, who were charged with no duty in the matter, and not the judgment of the mayor and aldermen who by election had received a mandate at the hands of the electors, should be paramount in the selection of a police head.

The arrogance of such petitioners, themselves charged with no duty, in thus presuming to take out of the hands of those responsible the functions of their office, must be at once apparent to all who gaze thereon. To the mayor it must have been doubly apparent, presenting itself in the nature of a challenge to perform the duties of an office which his election presumed he was capable and minded to carry out. In other words, it must have appeared to him in the way of being a dare to serve the public as seemed to him best.

That this dare was accepted at once, and unconditionally, those who presented the petition can best of all testify. In fact, the instantaneous and emphatic manner in which the mayor made it plain to the petitioners that they were attempting to usurp the functions which he had been elected to perform will go down as one of the epics of the municipal history of this city, and to make himself perfectly plain the mayor told the petitioners that it was his belief that the conditions of the police affairs of the city—conditions for which the petitioners must have been willing to stand sponsor as they were present protesting against change—were "rotten." Elucidating his own position, the mayor explained that a new commissioner was coming in, whose duties of office would have particular application to police affairs, and that he (the mayor) did not propose to ask any man to step into the responsibility of being apologist for such rotten conditions; that he proposed to give the new commissioner the opportunity to go to work with a clean slate. And, true to his word, this is precisely what he did; he cleared the slate by relieving the old chief of an office to which that gentleman was quite evidently constrained to most tenaciously cling, and he put into office as acting chief another man, whose ratification as permanent custodian of the office is left entirely to the discretion of the incoming commissioner who must bear the responsibility.

To clear-thinking people this must have appeared a proper and safe course in the public interest. But to quite a body of citizens, none of whom now hold office, it was deemed not acceptable. They were prepared to tie the hands of the mayor, to stultify the hypothesis of democracy that those who are elected represent the public, and to prevent him, if possible, making what changes he deemed necessary to live up to the requirements to the office he had accepted.

From this body of citizens there came the petition signed by the six ex-mayors and some sixty odd ratepayers. The demand in this petition was for a judicial investigation.

To those who understand the procedure of our courts, and the labyrinthian by-paths into which the intricacies of the rules of evidence may lead, it will be at once apparent that the demand for a judicial investigation was not inspired so much by a desire to protect the public from inefficient police administration as to delay any action by those charged with seeing that the service be at all times efficient, and to place somebody on the defensive—presumably the mayor, as the petitioners had already made it apparent that nothing could alter their opinion as to the wrongness of dismissing Chief Carpenter.

Being a man of quite as large experience as those who presented the petition, the mayor was able to discern the bear-trap before it was set, and naturally refused to be led into it. But the commissioner of safety, into whose hands the whole matter is relegated by virtue of his duties of office, through a cursory and impromptu inquiry, has brought to light a few facts which show that the mayor's adjective "rotten" was the mildest manner of speech. In fact, this inquiry shows that right in the citadel of the law, and in the very strongbox of the institution which is presumed to guard the property of citizens, that even there property was not safe from thieves, and that these thieves did not require to break through and steal because they were already on the inside—holding office. This inquiry shows that that not only was the police station safe robbed, but that accounts were conformed in order to cover up the mysterious disappearance of money; and that the official whom the Moral Reform association and the six ex-mayors and the sixty citizens declared must upon no consideration be removed from office was the official upon whose orders the conformation was made and by whom pressure was exerted to cover up the burglary and hide it away from the public.

Germans Praise Mohr.

To the Editor of the Capital: Some time ago a number of Germans in the neighborhood of Stuttgart, Germany, held a joint meeting, the object of which was to encourage emigration to Canada. The British consul at Stuttgart wrote to London for pamphlets which would give accurate and correct information about Canada. However, not quite satisfied with this, the undersigned also corresponded with the Canadian immigration officials at Winnipeg and Edmonton, and said authorities gave the assurance that the party would be met by immigration officials on our arrival and give us all the information necessary. And we must say the best of courtesy was extended to us by these officials in all our business affairs, for none of us could speak the English language. Especially we were indebted to the main Mr. J. Mohr, who was employed at the immigration hall at Edmonton. As a matter of fact, had Mr. Mohr taken such energetic measures on our behalf, many of us would not be in the possession of our baggage today, for the railway companies in this country do not seem to be particularly anxious to do it.

After having settled in the Maccled valley, the report reached us that Mr. Mohr had been dismissed from his government for not giving proper attention to the immigrants. This same Mr. Mohr who is lauded by all Germans for his willingness to serve the immigrants was thrown out of the position by the government for an alleged breach of duty which, however, has not been proved to this day. As soon as this action on the part of the conservative government reached us, we at once sent up a petition which was signed not only by Germans, but also by English and American immigrants, asking for reinstatement of Mr. Mohr in the interests of German immigration. But what was the result of the petition? Where did it land, and where is it now? This is the point we would like to have some information on, for it is a fact that our petition never reached the party.

After some time, however, Mr. Mohr received notice that he should be ready to take up his former position by January 1, 1914, and Mr. Mohr, depending on this, passed up two other chances to get a profitable position. However, up to date Mr. Mohr has not been reinstated, and it is our impression that the conservative party have been trying to play a contemptible trick on Mr. Mohr.

The object of this letter is to show that Mr. Mohr has not lost his esteem among the Germans, and if it is possible, to again secure his former position for him.

The writer is a respected teacher in the spring of a number of our friends are immigrating to this country, and we have written to them to tell them to tell Mr. Mohr when they arrive at Edmonton, Mr. Mohr, therefore, is known in the old country as a man who will stand up for the immigrants and as a man who has their welfare at heart.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

Birthday of Poet Who Got Record Price for Poetry.

Rudyard Kipling has probably received the highest market price for his poetical wares of any contemporary bard, but the top-notch price for verse was $1875 a line, the fortunate recipient of this remarkable sum having been James Smith, a poet now all but forgotten. Today is the 15th anniversary of Smith's birth. He achieved his greatest fame about a century ago, when he collaborated with his younger brother, Horace, in writing those exceedingly clever poetical parodies, "Rejected Addresses." It was not in this work, however, that he won the richest financial reward ever paid to a poet, for "Rejected Addresses" were written in competition for a prize of only £250, which was divided between the two brothers.

At a dinner to which James Smith was invited he met Richard Strachan, who was the king's printer, and noted as a brilliant and witty conversationalist. Strachan was suffering from gout, and could hardly walk, but his conversation was as sparkling as usual. On the day following the dinner Smith

WEAKNESS AND PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitated and throbs, skips beats, and sometimes seems to almost stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

Many people become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social, business or household duties. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all weakness and heart disorders, and are recommended by us with the greatest of confidence that they will do what we claim for them.

Mrs. George Burridge, Coboonok, Ont., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my use like your pills did. I can now recommend them highly to all with heart or nerve trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 8 boxes for $1.25, at all druggists, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Yes, I have seen you far from stout When last I saw you walk.

The cause I presently found out, Strachan, was not far from stout.

The power that props the body's strength

In you was upwards, and the strength

All settled in your head.

Strachan was so pleased with this strength

All settled in your head.

Strachan was so pleased with this tribute that he immediately added a

collet to his will, leaving Smith $150-

as a reward for his verse. Eventually the poet received this sum, which was payment at the rate of $125 per word for his little verse, which probably occupied less than an hour in writing.

"Rejected Addresses," in which

James and Horace Smith collaborated, were perhaps the best poetical prod-

in imitation of Wordsworth, Southey,

Coleridge and Crabbe, while Horace parodied Byron, Moore, Scott and of literature. There was nothing of malice in the parodies, and none of caricatured words were intended. Indeed both Byron and Scott highly complimented the work, and Byron declared that he could never believe that he had not written the address attributed to him.

James Smith, after this brilliant success, determined to "quit a win-

ever, won such a rich financial reward,

as of Smith rare lapses from his "swear-

TODAY IN DOMINION HISTORY.

The United Province of Canada, by which the Upper and Lower Provinces, founded since 1791, were united, came into being 73 years ago today, Feb. 10, 1841.

The Act of Union provided for a legislative council of not less than 20 members, and for a legislative assembly in which each of the provinces would have 12 members, all to remain unchanged except by a two-thirds majority in both houses.

Under the act, the legislative council could be dissolved at any time by the Governor-General. The English language was to be used in the deliberations. The first charges on the revenues were to be the collection thereof, interest on the public debt, the civil list, and the payment of the clergy. With these obligations satisfied, the remainder of the public funds was at the disposal of the legislature, on the recommendations of the Governor-General. The working out of Lord Durham's suggestion of not less than 20 members of popular government, but the act of union named at least a strong advance. Lord Durham's suggestion for a union of the Canada's found its first expression in a Bill introduced into the British Parliament by Lord John Russell. Lower Canada readily accepted the proposal, but in Upper Canada, where the legislature was controlled by Tory Loyalists, the new Governor-General, Charles E. P. Thomson, afterward Lord Sydenham of Sydney and Toronto, faced a more difficult proposition. The Governor-General was a man of fact, and finally won his way, and the act was passed, marking the first step toward confederation.

Canada and Nova Scotia were ceded to Great Britain by France through the treaty of Paris, signed on this date in 1763.

FIRST THINGS

William and Mary College.

The first college in British America, outside of Harvard, was William and Mary college, which was opened at Williamsburg, Va., on this date in 1692.

Under a charter obtained from William and Mary by the Rev. James Blair, The Virginia Institution was planned before Harvard was founded, but various obstacles caused the project to be delayed until after the famous New England institution had been launched.

Blair, the father of William and Mary college, was a Scotchman, and he had all the determination of his race, and a little more. Failing to collect sufficient funds to start the college in Virginia, he went to England to complete the work. He brought government from Sir Edward Seymour, declaring that the people of Virginia have souls to save as well as the people of the Old World, and received the historic reply: "Damn your souls! Raise tobacco!" Blair was not at all discouraged by this refusal, and in the course of time, he returned to Virginia with money and a charter. William and Mary college has never grown large, but it was destined to distinction not only because of its age, but because it was the first to adopt a secular and unsectarian policy, first to unite a group of faculties into a university, the first in many other instances of learning in the New World, and the United States three presidents.

Liverpool has completed the world's largest drydock, 1,025 feet long and 165 feet wide at the water line, and is the one in the world large enough to receive the new 10,000-ton liners.

tribute that he immediately added a

collet to his will, leaving Smith $150-

ANIMAL ACT AND COMEDY FEATURED AT PANTAGES SHOW

Much better than the average was the general dictum of those who attended Pantages last night. Headlining the bill is a unique animal act. Ten Polar bears are put through a number of tricks. Most of them appear to be delighted to amuse the audience, but there are a couple of surly brutes very reluctant to perform, and Captain Jack has to fight them every step before they consent, with many growls, to show their agility and training. Drinking out of bottles, playing acrobatics, sliding down a high steep plank, and wrestling with their trainer are a few of the stunts these uncouth beasts have been taught.

Davett and Duval present a little comedy, "Holding Out." The interested couple have to depend on their clever acting to create the laughs, for there is nothing in the piece to do so. They are, however, well able to do so, for they proved themselves to be a comedienne and comedian of very much above the ordinary run.

ROYALTY DELIGHTED WITH PERFORMANCE OF SEVEN-YEAR-OLD BOY. St. Petersburg, Feb. 10.—The Italian child conductor, Willie Ferrero, aged seven and a half years, who recently conducted the imperial orchestra at a command performance before the Czar also gave a performance before the Empress Marie and other members of the royal family. He was presented by the empress with the imperial arms set in diamonds and pearls. The story was that he had broken trying to break into vaudeville. His wife is holding out, or, in other words, living in the past. Particularly funny is the incident when the female part of the act breaks into sobs at the recollection of her dead husband, throwing herself on the bed in a paroxysm of grief, comes to grief when the bed collapses. They are certainly a clever couple, and were deserving of the very flattering reception they received.

Young Ferrero was born in America. His parents are on the stage and listening to music became part of his daily life. At two he began to show signs of talent. Paris was the first scene of his appearance in public, three and a half years ago.

Lawrence Johnson is a good ventriloquist who pulls off two or three jokes quite a long way to spoil the turn. He is without question clever, but his "jokes" on things sacred only amuse a certain section of the audience. He gives what he calls an imitation of the King of England, then Prince of Wales, giving his famous "Wake up, England" speech. Whether it was a good imitation or not few in the audience could say, but that it was popular is undeniable, for he received a great ovation.

The Morette Sisters are an added attraction. Their names are not on the program, but the opinion of many is that their turn was vastly superior to some that were on. "The two winning little ladies would make a hit if they merely walked on the stage. They dress prettily and in a catchy way, and their little mannerisms at once make them idols of the audience. They are clever musicians and dance well, and will no doubt prove a magnet this week. Excellent moving pictures round off a remarkably good offering.

Pictures of this standard are a boon to the people and should be appreciated. The son of an old successful miner, who lives in the borderland, responds to a message from his fast-fading father and hastens to his rescue. He takes with him his wife and three-year-old daughter, and Nig, a trip to the Blackmore, an adventure, trails the little party. On the trip a lion which has tasted human blood recently follows the trail of the Milk-banks. But they arrive at the cabin of the father too late, so he sets out alone to find the missing claim his father has discovered. Blackmore, thinking to find the woman defenceless, makes a night visit to the shack. He finds the faithful Nig asleep, steals his gun and fires the hut.

But Blackmore starts on the trail of Milkbank. In the meantime the mother, child and servant take to the deserts of the North. They are rescued by a band of Indians. They board a raft, but are attacked by a starving lion, who swims out to them. The woman takes the child in her arms and swims ashore, while Nig battles singlehanded with the wild beast. This is a wonderful bit of acting hardly surpassed in any picture seen before.

Milkbank, attracted by the cries of the burning hut, returns, but is astounded to find his little family gone. He is determined to find them. SULLIVAN'S LIMITED JASPER BLOCK

IN HYDE PARK WITH PROPERLY CREASED TROUSERED SKIRT

London, Feb. 10.—The novel sight was afforded to persons in Hyde Park yesterday of a woman appearing in a get-up which was described as a new trouser skirt. The garment had the orthodox crease down the center of each leg and upturned ends and was worn with patent leather shoes and colored hose. This skirt is said to be the natural evolution of the silk skirt and infinitely more practical.

Unions to Confer With Council.

On Wednesday a most important meeting will be held at the civic block when representatives of the street railway employees union will confer with city officials as regards that much discussed agreement which went unsigned last year. Had not there been one or two minor amendments to the agreement, it would have been signed a day or so pending consideration of the same. In all probability the agreement would have been signed last week.

No Change to Consumer.

A reduction of 24 to 2 cents per kilowatt as charged the lighting department for power has so far failed to meet with any corresponding reduction to the consumer. Three months ago the lighting department was given this material reduction in power charges. Although the matter of rates to be charged the consumer is recommended by department heads, the department head is in no way responsible to the public and, under the new order of things, is not the individual who says what the charges shall be. It is up to the commissioner of utilities as he is the man responsible. A lower power charge is about in order.

TOOK SEVERE COLD.

And A Nasty Tickling Sensation In The Throat.

A bad cough accompanied by that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat is most aggravating.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is rich in the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, and for this reason it will stop that tickling in the throat which causes that dry hard cough that keeps you awake at night.

Mr. Sanford Roode, Antrim, N.S., writes—"Last fall I took a severe cold which left me with a terrible hard cough and a nasty tickling sensation in my throat. I tried many cough medicines, but they did not help me so I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had used half of it the cough had left me, and the next one made a complete cure, and I will recommend it as the best cough medicine on the market."

See that you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Do not accept any imitation. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price, 25c and 50c, and manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LOCAL HUSTLERS TRIM CALGARY IROQUOISIN OVERTIME 2 TO 1

"Newsies" Had It Over the "Indians" at All Stages, But Fell Down Lamentably in Their Shooting. Overtime Was Needed to Decide Winner. Visitors Led Half Time 1-0.

Although the Edmonton Hustlers had more than two-thirds the play in their game with the Calgary Iroquois last night, it took them eight minutes overtime to score the winning goal. For a while, the game was full of thrills and excitement from the very start, and when the Indians made themselves known, by scoring the first goal, the game was very interesting. The local "newsies" had a hard time, but they were not to be outdone. The local "newsies" had a hard time, but they were not to be outdone. The local "newsies" had a hard time, but they were not to be outdone.

In the first half the locals had all the better of play, and very few times in their territory. One of these last night, however, Strahan notched the only score, on a rebound, following a pretty run. The half ended 1 to 0.

It took just 40 seconds in the second period for Dunlop to tie the score, and for the balance of the half the teams battled up and down, here and there all over, but without further score. When time was called, a number of the "kids" were "all in," but barely started on their ten minutes overtime to decide the winner. Five minutes they fought, but no score, but after switching goals again, Joe Dussault, the little midget of the "newsies," made a grand running goal and fooled Fraser for the winning goal score 2-1.

For the visitors, London and Strahan were the main goals. London was the pick; while for the Hustlers, Dussault, Dunlop, Wright and Gossnell were easily the best. It was a grand contest between two good teams, but the locals had it over the Indians at all stages, and have added another victory to their string. Joe Dussault got Winnipeg, Feb. 10.—Winnipeg practically lost their grip on the Allan cup last night when Victoria with all the breaks in their favor notched two goals in the last five minutes of play in a game close and exciting, which required 20 minutes overtime to decide. The first half saw both teams score the level and the same was recorded at full time. Five minutes each way was decided upon, when Winnipeg took the lead but the second period saw the teams again level.

Other extra time was played. In the final five, Ollie Turnbull in attempting to take the puck round behind his own goal was caught by Victoria. This proved the turning point of the game, for Henry Haul shortly afterwards beat the whole opposition and checked the game for the Vics. It was hard luck on Winnipeg, for exchanges had certainly been slightly in their favor.

The score at full time was 5 to 5, and in the overtime play Victoria made the total 7 to 5 in their favor.

In the intermediate basketball series the University of Medicine last night defeated the Oxford Y. M. C. A. team by 18 to 12. For the Meds, Stevens made 6 baskets, Hammond 2 and Hustler 1; while Treffer, Bowling and Butcher made two apiece for the Oxfords, and Butcher shot a couple of fouls. The line-up was:

Gunsbot Smith's opinion of Tommy Burns is not so very different from Tommy Burns' opinion of Gunsbot Smith. The only difference is that Burns is willing to meet Smith, winner take all, while the Gunner wants a guarantee of $10,000 to meet Burns.

The Ottawas have lost a couple of games away from home this winter, and but one game at home. The Toronto have also lost but one game at home and three on the road, and the Canadians have the same record. Ottawa looks the best road team in the league.

EDMONTON BONSPIEL OPENED THIS MORNING AT NINE O'CLOCK

Altogether 66 Rinks Entered—20 From Outside Points—Grand Challenge and Brewery Competition Today.

All final preparations were arranged last night to give the Greater Edmonton bonspiel a good send-off this morning at nine o'clock, when the first draws were played. Altogether 66 rinks are entered in thespiel, and it will no doubt be Tuesday or Wednesday of next week before the cup and trophy winners have been decided.

Four series of draws will be played each day: 9 a.m., 12:30 p.m., 3:30 p.m., 7:30 p.m. The public are invited to witness the games and no doubt large crowds will take advantage of the opportunity to see the game as it is played, as some of the best curlers in the province are here for the big event. ESKIMOS-DOMINION GAME WEDNESDAY

Second of Brackman-Ker Series Tomorrow Night—Eskimos Should Win.

Tomorrow night at 8:30 will begin the second game in the Brackman-Ker series. Can the Eskimos register another defeat to the Dominions? This is the question that is being asked, and the answer is, that if the Eskimos can stack up another game as the one last week, they should be credited with a win when the final bell rings. Of course, this is all advance talk, and the provincial champions may spring a surprise and come through with the necessary. A win for the green and white will tie up the series with one apiece, while a win for the "Blondes" Eskimos will end the series, and they will then meet the Moose of Moose Jaw in an exhibition game here on the 20th of this month.

Both the Eskimos and Dominions will use their same line-ups as in the last games, as it is almost impossible to make an improvement on either team. There will be nothing half about the game tomorrow night. There is no loss of interest between the two teams and the contest should be one grand exhibition from start to finish. The usual four-minute car service will be in operation, and a good service into the city after the game.

The supply on the market this morning for sale amounted to 800 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 150 hogs and 150 calves. A stronger feeling prevailed in the market for cattle to-day, as buyers generally were taking an advance in the prices of 25 per hundred pounds as compared with a week ago. The heavy cattle market was in want of the advances as the supply was in excess of the requirements. In the light cattle market, the feeling was that which had been held over from the past two weeks on account of the high prices demanded. The purchasing of buyers was fair, and there was some demand for good useful stock but the advance asked tended to check the movement and trade in general was slow. There was little inquiry for common or inferior stock, as buyers seem to be well supplied with this class of beef, for which the demand is slow. For full milked, lean of choice of Avers and heifers with one or two fat cows in them as high as $50 to $75 was asked which buyers were slow to purchase. Prices were realized in some instances for small picked lots. Some buyers were slow to purchase on account of the condition of the market was unsatisfactory to both buyers and sellers. There was a feeling of anxiety in the market for small meat, prices being active on account of the high prices demanded. There is only a fair demand for lamb, as there is a fair demand for full adult at $25 to $30 and one at $20 to $25. The market for hogs was strong and the demand for choice calves with 85 to 90 per hundred pounds and 100 to 110 per hundred pounds was good at $10 to $20 each. The heavy cattle market was in want of the advances as the supply was in excess of the requirements. In the light cattle market, the feeling was that which had been held over from the past two weeks on account of the high prices demanded. The purchasing of buyers was fair, and there was some demand for good useful stock but the advance asked tended to check the movement and trade in general was slow. There was little inquiry for common or inferior stock, as buyers seem to be well supplied with this class of beef, for which the demand is slow. For full milked, lean of choice of Avers and heifers with one or two fat cows in them as high as $50 to $75 was asked which buyers were slow to purchase. Prices were realized in some instances for small picked lots. Some buyers were slow to purchase on account of the condition of the market was unsatisfactory to both buyers and sellers. There was a feeling of anxiety in the market for small meat, prices being active on account of the high prices demanded. There is only a fair demand for lamb, as there is a fair demand for full adult at $25 to $30 and one at $20 to $25. The market for hogs was strong and the demand for choice calves with 85 to 90 per hundred pounds and 100 to 110 per hundred pounds was good at $10 to $20 each.
